BRITISH PREFERENTIAL TARIFF.

NOTICE TO IMPORTERS.

It has come to the knowledge of this department from enquiries made that quantities of flour imported from time to time from New York have been entered at the preferential rate of duty and wrongly described as being of Canadian origin. Importers of flour are hereby notified that from this date onwards the brands of all flours upon which preference is claimed must be inserted on the import entries and this department will not admit to preferential treatment any kinds of flour, whether accompanied by certificates of origin or not, unless satisfied as to the origin of same. It is entirely in the discretion of the department to admit goods at the preferential rate of duty prior to the receipt of certificates of origin, and for the future, no deposits for the amount of the differential duty will be taken on, or bond allowed to be given for flour unless brought direct, without transshipment, from Canada or the United Kingdom. When imported by other transit routes unaccompanied by satisfactory certificates of origin, duty at the general tariff rate will have to be paid, and no refund of same will afterwards be granted. In instances where deposits of the differential duty are accepted or bonds allowed to be given, the prescribed period for the due production of proofs of origin for all classes of preferential goods, flour included, is generally fixed at two months, and no extension of this period will in future be allowed. At the end of a week after the expiration of the time given for the production of certificates of origin all deposits made against the production of such certificates are to be carried to account as revenue, and in the case of bonds for the production of certificates the difference in duty between the preferential and the general rates must be paid upon demand, otherwise the bond will be put in force for the recovery of the outstanding amounts.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 26TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1913.

RECEIVER GENERAL.

VERSUS

A. DE FREITAS.

The following judgment was read:—

EARNSHAW, Acting C.J.: In this case the Receiver General petitions the Chief Justice for a fiat for the recovery by parate execution of $1,412.61 being "duty payable on 846.13 proof gallons of rum at the rate of $1.65 per proof gallon" which is "the difference between the late Excise duty of fifty cents and the duty of two dollars and fifteen cents a proof gallon on so much of the stock of rum on hand on 1st April, 1913, as represents an excess of the assessment for the financial year 1912-1913."

The opposer requested to be heard before the fiat was granted, and in accordance with the settled practice as shown by previous cases, I heard the arguments of both parties and took all the evidence tendered on the 21st August last.

The fiat is requested under the provisions of section 10 of Ordinance 9 of 1904, which provides that all taxes, imports, dues and sums of money payable to His Majesty or to the Colony, shall be recoverable by parate or summary execution; and the signature of the Receiver General, the Assistant Receiver General, or other officer authorized to receive the same subscribed to any document setting forth in writing a statement of the amount claimed, or due shall, without proof of any such signature, and without proof of any other matter or thing be held and be deemed to be in all Courts and by all Judges and Magistrates prima facie evidence of the amount claimed being in every particular correct."

This section has been complied with and under ordinary circumstances all that the Judge would have to do, would be to grant the fiat for execution.

This step really includes both judgment on the prima facie evidence (which the Judge must regard as sufficient) and the granting of authority to execute on the judgment.

The granting of a fiat is thus a judicial quite as much as a ministerial act and as the Receiver General must present to the Chief Justice a petition for the fiat, the rules which govern petitions generally apply. Under these rules the party against whom the petition is filed, is allowed to oppose the granting of the prayer thereof.

Before the opposer can succeed, he must rebut the presumption that the petitioner's case is proved by the prima facie evidence; and on the question being raised before me I decided that as the onus of proof is shifted the opposer must begin.

In objecting to the granting of the "fiat" the opposer sets forth that the grounds of the opposition (amongst others) are:—

(1) The said Antonio de Freitas denies that any duty is or ever was payable in respect of the sum mentioned in the summation or any part thereof.

(2) He denies that there was ever any assessment for the financial year 1912-1913. If there was any assessment for the said period it was not made as required by law.

(3) He denies that there was any excess of the assessment (if any) for the financial year 1912-1913.

(4) He says that if there was any excess such excess is not correctly stated.

(5) He denies that he took from Bond the amount stated in the summation to have been taken by him or any part thereof.

(6) He denies the stock in hand was on the 1st April, 1913, 1,279 gallons or any part thereof.

(7) He denies that the amount claimed is now due or payable.

(8) He will contend that no legal obligation to pay any part of the duty sought to be recovered is imposed on him by Ordinance or otherwise.

Grounds (1), (7) and (8) merely state in one form or another that the opposer is not legally bound to pay the amount claimed. These therefore need not be particularly considered as they merely raise the general question which must be decided on special grounds. Under one or another of the other grounds of opposition several arguments were addressed to me on behalf of the opposer.

Section 12 of Ordinance 1 of 1913 provides a new method of raising or collecting the duties on rum and in a proviso thereto enacts "that on the date of the coming into force of this Ordinance (which date was April 1st, 1913), the stocks of those retail spirit dealers whose takings from Bond during the preceding twelve months have exceeded their assessments for the same period, be checked and the difference between the late Excise duty of fifty cents and the duty of two dollars and fifteen cents a proof gallon be collected on so much of their stocks as represent excesses on their assessments for such period."

As this was not thought to be sufficiently clear the following explanatory amendment was made by section 2 of Ordinance 11 of 1913.

"By the words 'so much of their stocks as represent excesses on their assessments' is meant any stock remaining in hand on the 1st day of April, 1913, up to an amount equal to the difference between the assessment for the year 1912-1913 and the amount in excess of the assessment taken from bond during the year 1912-1913, and by the words 'assessment for the same period' is meant assessments for the purpose of retail spirit licence for the same period."

It is under these sections that the claim is made and most of the arguments dealt with the meaning of or the effect to be given to the words of the same.

As is usual in a case which concerns the interpretation of an Ordinance I was exhorted by one side to adopt a strict interpretation of the sections.

It was even suggested that the above enactment was somehow penal and that the rules of interpretation which apply in the case of penal statutes in favour of an accused should be applied here in favour of the opposer. But I find nothing penal in these provisions. They are merely fiscal or revenue-raising.

As attempts are often made both here and elsewhere to drive the proverbial "coach and four" through a statute or Ordinance, and as in such cases questions of interpretation frequently arise, it may be useful to set forth the authorities by which a Judge or Magistrate should be guided.

These authorities range over a period of more than fifty years and are the expressions of Judges of more than usual ability and consideration.

They are as follows:—

By Chief Baron Pollock in Salkeld v. Johnson Exchequer Reports Vol. II, page 273, 1848.

"We propose to construe the Act of Parliament, according to the legal rules for the interpretation of statutes principally by the words of the statute itself, which we are to read in their ordinary sense, and only modify or alter so far as it may be necessary to avoid some manifest absurdity or incongruity, but no further. It is proper also to consider the state of the law which it proposes or purports to alter, the mischiefs which existed, and which it was intended to remedy, and the nature of the remedy provided, and to look at the statutes in pari materia as a means of explaining this statute. These are the proper modes of ascertaining the intention of the legislature."

By Lord Herschell in Colquhoun v. Brooks, L.R., Ap. Cas., Vol. xiv., 1889, page 506.

"It is beyond dispute, too, that we are entitled and indeed bound when construing the terms of any provision found in a statute to consider any other parts of the Act which throw light upon the intention of the legislature and which may serve to shew that the particular provision ought not to be construed as it would be if considered alone and apart from the rest of the Act."

By Baron Pollock in Attorney General v. Beech, L.R., Q.B.D., 1897, (2), page 539.

"The first point we have to consider is this: that the object of the Finance Act is to levy upon all property, real or personal, settled or not settled, estate duty. The time at which that duty is to be payable is fixed, and fixed with reference to the death of a person who has been the owner of, or has enjoyed, the property in question. That being so we start with a proposition which is not included in the ordinary common law principle (as it is admitted on both sides and as we have it laid down again and again, especially by Lord Westbury); these Acts are not to be construed in accordance with the ordinary language of conveyancers, or in accordance with what is supposed to give effect to the principles upon which conveyancers would act; they are to be construed, as indeed all other Acts are, with a view to carrying out what is supposed to be the intention of the Act and its provisions as expressed by the language used. That being so, the language of the Act, to my mind, is not at all difficult to construe."

By Lord Russell, Chief Justice, in Attorney General v. Carlton Bank in L.R., Q.B.D., 1899 (2), page 165.

"In the course of argument reference was made on both sides to supposed special canons of construction applicable to Revenue Acts. For my part I do not accept that suggestion. I see no reason why special canons of construction should be applied to any Act of Parliament, and I know of no authority for saying that a taxing Act is to be construed differently from any other Act. The duty of the Court is, in my opinion, in all cases the same, whether the Act to be construed relates to taxation or to any other subject, namely, to give effect to the intention of the Legislature as that intention is to be gathered from the language employed having regard to the context in connection with which it is employed. The Court must not doubt ascertain the subject matter to which the particular tax is by the statute intended to be applied, but when once that is ascertained, it is not open to the Court to narrow or whittle down the operation of the Act by seeming considerations of hardship or of business convenience or the like. Courts have to give effect to what the Legislature has said."

In construing the Ordinances which affect this case I therefore intend as far as possible "to give effect to the intention of the Legislature as that intention is to be gathered from the language employed having regard to the context in connection with which it is employed," and "to avoid" any "manifest absurdity or incongruity."

Now the sections under which this claim is made clearly show that it was the intention of the Legislature that under certain circumstances certain retail spirit dealers should pay a duty of $1.65 per proof gallon of rum.

It is also abundantly clear that the Legislature intended that these spirit dealers should pay that $1.65 in cases where they had paid only a duty of 50 cents on a similar amount of rum which they still had on the 1st of April last in stock unsold.

The remaining provisions are more in the nature of machinery than substantive enactments.

They provide how the amount of the rum to be so charged with the $1.65 duty shall be ascertained.

It was urged on behalf of the opposer that there was no assessment for the financial year 1912-1913, from which, if it were true, it would follow that one of the necessary bases on which the calculation of the amount payable rests is lacking. This absence would of course be fatal to the claim. It is also urged that if there were any assessment for the said period, it was not made as required by law.

If the word "assessment" as used in the two relevant sections means or must be taken to mean a special procedure under which the amount to be taxed was calculated for the financial year 1912-1913 only, the objection would be good as no such particular calculation was made for that year.

The petitioner does not however accept that meaning and the Judge is asked to say that "assessment" means in these two sections "an amount fixed by law" as, for example, a "rate."

As there is a dispute as to the meaning, I propose to apply the principles already set forth, and find if I can what is the intention of the Legislature. It is common knowledge that the word "assessment" is popularly used to express the result of the inquiry procedure for assessing. In England a payer of Income Tax would say that his assessment for the year was, e.g., £800, meaning by that that the amount on which he had to pay tax was £800. He would not then mean by the word "assessment" his negotiations, if any, with the Surveyor of Taxes or the inquiry made in some cases by the Income Tax Commissioners with a view to fixing the amount. There is nothing therefore to prevent the Court from accepting the petitioner's interpretation if it expresses the intention of the Legislature.

The opposer asked the Court to accept the other interpretation, and, assuming that such was the proper interpretation, urged that there was no "assessment" in that case for the year 1912-1913.

To accept this interpretation would be to defeat the clear intention of the Legislature. It would make the two sections in question useless and result in such a "manifest absurdity or incongruity" as Chief Baron Pollock mentions.

It is in evidence in this case that before April, 1st, 1908, the stocks of spirit dealers were taken regularly half-yearly or quarterly by an officer of the Government for the purpose of guiding the Excise Board in fixing the amount of duty payable.

But by section 46 of Ordinance 2 of 1908, it was provided that "every person who keeps a retail spirit shop shall take out a licence for so doing, and shall pay for the same at the rate of $2 for each gallon of the average annual quantity of rum sold by him during the last three financial years."

This section implicitly but no less certainly abolished all previous enactments as to the method of calculating the amount of duty payable and therefore any argument advanced by the opposer and intended to convince the Court that there was no assessment (giving to the word the meaning which he desires) as required by the previous Tax Ordinances is of no avail.

Under the provisions of Ordinance 2 of 1908, Mr. Cameron, who is now the Chief Commissary himself, made the computations which resulted in the opposer having to pay yearly under that Ordinance duty on 949 gallons of rum.

Between April 1st, 1908, and April 1st, 1913, that amount remained fixed and as the Chief Commissary states in his evidence that fixed amount has been generally and popularly spoken of as the "assessment." I therefore interpret the word assessment as used in Ordinances 1 and 11 of 1913 as meaning the amount fixed under section 46 of Ordinance 2 of 1908. Thus the assessment for the financial year 1912-1913 is 949 gallons.

The opposer further objected that the stock was not "checked" as required by law.

Eustace Eyre King, a Commissary of Taxation, carefully, and with the help of one Cowes and the foreman in the opposer's shop, on the 1st of April, 1913, calculated and entered in a book produced the amount of proof rum then and there in stock. According to him there were 1,079 gallons of proof rum in barrels, and 200 gallons proof in bottles or mixed in sweet drinks, &c. He arrived at the amount in the bottles by testing four by Sikes' Hydrometer, and then averaging; and as regards the rum in the sweet drinks, &c., he reckoned it at 30 per cent. which according to his evidence is "the usual practice of his profession."

The opposer says that such a check does not comply with the law. As far as I understand him he says that the law requires that each bottle of rum should have been tested separately and that the Government Analyst or Assistant Government Analyst should have analysed in the Laboratory all the sweet drinks such as noyeau, shrub, marsala, &c.

Such an interpretation of the word "checked" would result in another "manifest absurdity." I decide that for the purposes of the sections now in question a sufficient "check" was made by the Commissary of Taxation. I cannot interpret the word "checked" to mean anything more than what was done. But even if the law required the elaborate testing and analysis suggested by the opposer, he at any rate is not in any way damaged as 1,079 gallons of proof rum were found in barrels, and the claim against him is for duty payable on 856'13 gallons only.

It was argued that the methods of calculation employed in estimating the proof rum in the bottles and the sweet drinks introduced so much uncertainty as to render the claim by way of parate execution bad. This argument is based on the concluding words of the judgment of W. J. Smith, C.J., in the case of Rec. Gen. v. Brice, 11th May, 1899 (local.)

Those words do not apply to the facts of this case. In this claim "the quantity on which duty is chargeable and consequently the amount of duty payable" are definitely ascertained.

Another objection was that the rum found in stock on April 1st, 1913, must be proved to be identical with or the same as rum taken from bond during the financial year 1912-1913. But the law does not require this. The words of the section which apply are "any stock remaining on hand on the 1st April, 1913."

A further objection is that reading section 12 of Ordinance 1 and section 2 of Ordinance 11 of 1913 together the difference there mentioned is not the difference between the amount taken out of bond and the amount of the assessments for the year 1912-1913, but the difference between the result of those differences and the amount of the assessment for that year.

Thus we should have

	Gallons.
Amount taken from bond...	1,805'13
Assessment ...	949
Difference ...	856'13

Then we begin again and have

	Gallons.
Assessment ...	949'00
Difference as above ...	856'13
The difference meant according to opposer	82'87

If the opposer's contention were correct he would pay on 82'87 instead of 856'13 gallons.

But this neither expresses the intention of the Legislature nor is it a reasonable, even if possible, interpretation of the words of the two sections.

The same remarks apply to the opposer's argument that as the words "stocks" and "assessments" in the sections are used in the plural and not in the singular, a joint liability only is imposed on all the spirit dealers.

As all the objections fail, I grant the fiat as requested with costs for the petitioner if any.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 2ND DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

DALY
versus
OGLE.

The following decision was read:—

HILL, Acting J.: Plaintiff claims delivery of articles said to be detained by defendant, or payment of the values. There is no question of law involved, and on the facts I find that plaintiff has not proved her allegations, as she is bound to do, that is, the removal and the wrongful detention. I give judgment for defendant with costs.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 2ND DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

versus
WELCOME.

The following decision was read:—

HILL, Acting J.: This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate dismissing an information against respondent for a breach of contract for that after he had entered into service he refused to fulfil the terms of the contract.

The information is laid under Ordinance 26 of 1909, which, inter alia, by section 5, enacts that "no contract of service shall be enforced under this Ordinance unless the labourer who is to serve under it has been registered by the Institute of Mines and Forests or by some officer or agent thereof, and a certificate of registration has been delivered to such labourer."

The form of certificate is that required by Regulation 44 (2) under the Crown Lands Regulations of 23rd March, 1910, and approved of by the Commissioner of Lands and Mines.

That certificate, it is clear, requires the signature of the Registering Officer. In the present case the certificate does not bear any signature. It was stated to have on the face of it the seal of the Institute of Mines and Forests, but this does not appear to be so, on the copy before this Court.

The learned Magistrate dismissed the information on the ground that the Ordinance being quasi-criminal, it must be construed strictly against a complainant, and the certificate not bearing the signature of the registering officer, there was in fact no certificate issued such as was required by section 5 of Ordinance 26 of 1909.

The reasons of appeal are:—

1. That the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury, there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict in as much as

(a.) It was proved at the hearing that a certificate of registration as required by law was issued and delivered to the defendant by the Institute of Mines and Forest.

(b.) It was proved at the hearing that the defendant entered into the service of the Consolidated Rubber and Balata Estates, Limited, as a balata-bleeder and prospector and received advances therefrom and afterwards (refused?) to fulfil his contract.

2. The decision is erroneous in point of law in as much as:

(a.) The Magistrate was wrong in finding that the Certificate of Registration No. 30,388, issued by the Institute of Mines and Forest to the defendant and produced at the hearing by the defendant was irregular, null and void and not in compliance with the Crown Lands Regulations, 1910.

(b.) If the said certificate of registration was irregular on the face of it the defendant accepted same received the benefits that accrued therefrom and flowed therefrom, such acceptance being a waiver in law of any irregularity which is denied.

(c.) The said certificate having been produced by the defendant and tendered in open Court could not afterwards be objected to at the hearing.

The reasons given in support of reason 1 of appeal are really reasons more applicable to reason 2—certainly reasons 1 (a.) Reason 1 (b) was not decided one way or the other by the Magistrate. As a matter of fact reason 1 is not a good reason where there has been a dismissal in either a civil or criminal matter, and counsel for appellant did not argue it.

With regard to reason 2 (a) I am of opinion that the Magistrate was right in holding that, in the circumstances detailed in his reasons for decision, the certificate was no certificate in law. The effect of the issue to the labourer of such a certificate was to prevent the enforcing of the contract which then became an informal agreement; not void, but giving right to imperfect obligations. No right under the contract itself nor any right founded on it could be directly enforced. But the contract could be recognised for the purpose of explaining anything actually done in pursuance of it, and anything so done might be a good consideration for a new obligation on a subsequent and distinct contract, or a sufficient foundation for a new obligation quasi ex contractu.

Reason 2 (b) really asks the Court to enforce the equitable doctrine of part performance and in effect send the respondent to imprisonment. Assuming all else necessary to be proved, such a request could not be complied with. The doctrine as to part performance has always, so far as I am aware, been confined to questions relating to land, and never to contracts of service.

The respondent in this matter is charged with breach of contract, on conviction for which he is liable to imprisonment. To my mind, no question of part performance can affect the decision of the Magistrate.

Reason 2 (c). The certificate was produced by the defendant's Solicitor on notice from complainant's Solicitor, and in so producing it he drew the Court's attention to the omission of the registering officer's signature to it. At the close of the complainant's case, defendant's Solicitor relied on the point of law in regard to the certificate and called no witnesses. I cannot see he did anything more than he had a perfect right to do. He did not object to its admission, but to its admission as a perfect document, and he rested his case on that submission. The Magistrate's decision is affirmed and the appeal dismissed.

There having been no appearance of the respondent, no order is made as to costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 12TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

JOSEPH MADHOO, Appellant.

versus

JOHN RUSSELL, Respondent.

The following decision was read:—

EARNSHAW, Acting C.J.: This is a case in which plaintiff, now respondent, claimed from the appellant in the Court below the sum of $25 for work done in valuing property of the appellant at Plantation Mora, at the appellant's request.

The record shows that the only real issue between the parties was as to whether the price was agreed upon at $5 or not. This is a question of fact and there was ample evidence on which the Magistrate could find as he did, that no price was agreed upon, and that a fair price for the work done was $25 for which he gave judgment. The appellant tried to get behind that judgment by stating various grounds of appeal. There is no merit in any of the grounds. As regards ground 1 (a), it does not state what is really the truth.

There were not two several causes of action in the plaint and the Magistrate even if there had been had power to amend as he did.

1. (b.) states that the plaint was bad for want of certainty and should have been struck out. The plaint was not bad for want of certainty, but even if that were so, this Court could not listen to this ground as the record does not show that the objection was taken in the Court below. Reason 2 (a) is that the plaint filed with the account attached thereto, was not supported by the evidence.

The Magistrate found that the plaint and account were supported by the evidence and there was ample evidence on which he could so find. Mr. Ogle argues to-day that the evidence does not show that the work was done on May 31st, 1913. Time is not of the essence of this contract. If the date is wrong, Counsel could have objected in the Court below, and an amendment which would not have prejudiced his client in the case might have been made. But he did not object.

The other grounds of appeal raise questions as to which witness or which party should be believed. These questions are entirely for the Magistrate who has the parties before him. They are really inadmissible as grounds of appeal, because they cannot be brought under sub-section 8 of section 9 of Ordinance 13 of 1893.

They need not be further considered.

The appeal is dismissed, but as respondent does not appear it is dismissed without costs.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 13TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

JOHN CORREIA

versus

THE DEMERARA RAILWAY COMPANY.

The following judgment was read:—

EARNSHAW, J.: In this case the plaintiff claims from the defendant Company damages for the loss of a horse.

The plaintiff owned a horse which was pastured on Plantation Nonpareil under an agreement of which the terms is that the estate is "not responsible for cattle straying."

horse in question "wandered" away from Nonpareil and the estates which are with that plantation on to Plantation Foulis, where it worked with Plantation Enmore. Plantation Nonpareil and Plantation Enmore are owned by different owners.

the purposes of this judgment it may be that the horse got on to the railway line of plantations from Plantation Foulis, was there an engine and died from the effects of the the plaintiff can succeed he must show that in some way lawfully occupying Plantation with his horse at the time when it got on to railway line.

on the evidence of the Manager of Plantation Enmore that there is and has been for a long "working understanding" between the Managers of Plantations Nonpareil and Enmore that they did not proceed at once to impound each other's animals when found straying and trespassing on respective estates but will give notice to the other, if necessary, of the trespass and allow time to recover the animals so straying or grazing peaceably and without recourse to law. The Manager of Enmore said, in his evidence, "if Nonpareil remained too long on Enmore land I would write to the Manager to have it removed."

"working understanding" deserves commendation as a very sensible proceeding, but they cannot claim that it gives him in law a licence for his animal, when lawfully grazing on Nonpareil, to stray away and graze anywhere on the Enmore estates including Plantation where the horse was at the time when it got there.

in my opinion no more than an informal understanding between the two Managers not to enforce the law as against trespassing animals. The law, however, still remains trespassers notwithstanding the agreement.

it is clear that if the Manager of Plantation Enmore did not comply with the notice of which the Manager of Plantation Enmore speaks, legal action could be taken for trespassing.

the "working understanding" the trespasser may be pardoned if the animal is removed, but that is all. The "working understanding" does not give a licence to occupy.

therefore, that the horse of the plaintiff was grazing at the place where it is presumed it got on to the railway line. That being so, there is no case, and I give judgment for the plaintiff with costs.

(3.) The holder of a wholesale licence shall pay for such licence by such instalments as may from time to time be fixed by the Combined Court, and, in default of so doing, he shall be liable to pay a penalty of ten dollars for every day during which he may be in arrears of such payment.

(4.) The Chief Commissary shall not be bound to issue any retail licence under this section, but may grant or refuse the same at his discretion.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

THIS 11TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

SEEGOLAM
versus
GRIFFITH.

The following report was read:—

HILL, J., (acting): This matter comes before me on a reference by the Full Court in which it was ordered:

- (1) That the partnership subsisting between the plaintiff and defendant be dissolved.
- (2) That the plaintiff account to the defendant for his dealings with the partnership property from the beginning of the partnership; namely, the 10th day of June, 1911, to the date of the order.
- (3) That the defendant account to the plaintiff for two lots of gold brought down to Georgetown by him in the month of August, 1912; and
- (4) That the business referred to in paragraphs 16 and 17 of the plaintiff's claim be taken as part of the business of the said partnership.

Accounts have been filed in regard to (2) and (3), objections lodged and answered, and after hearing the evidence and examining the accounts, I find with regard to (2) that in addition to the sums of $570.06, $363.73, and $929.74, admitted by Seegolam as having been received for the sale of gold further sums of $361.96, $1,745.57, and $1,452.90 have to be charged against him for gold received. He has submitted expenditure amounting to $8,951.24, but of this $4,669.84 has been disallowed either by consent or on evidence while $50.00 has been allowed in addition to the amount charged. The nett result of these transactions is that Seegolam is found to be owing the partnership $1,004.11.

With regard to (3) the two lots of gold fetched $597.70 and Griffith has accounted for this to the extent of $328.84, leaving $268.86 due by him. With regard to (4) I can arrive at no very conclusive figures. It is clear, however, that the amount of goods sent up amounted to $1,033.41, and not $1,236.74. What I am asked to do is to ascertain the result of the sale of these goods. The amount stated to have been realised, it is admitted by Counsel for the defence, cannot be correct. It is suggested by him that Alfred Griffith, the brother of defendant, who was at times in sole charge of the shop, has robbed the partnership, and that this man was a servant of the partnership. I find on the evidence that the defendant Griffith was manager of the shop, and that he was in collusion with his brother. I accept the evidence of Ramlochan as regards the "bush" sale prices of the provisions, &c., and calculated at those prices the amount that ought to have been realised had the goods all been sold at those prices would have been $3,142.97. From this, however, must be deducted the cost of goods supplied (at "bush" rates) to the labourers of the partnership, which I estimate to amount to $570 and a further amount of, say, $150 for odd days, in all $720. To this amount I add the purchase value of 16 ozs. 9 dwts 23 grs. of gold—say $284 which is shown in the "Register of gold purchased." I am unable on the evidence to find any other amount to have been so received in face of the testimony as to the indiscriminate manner in which gold won or gold purchased was dealt with. There should also be deducted the feeding expenses of the crew when pulling up the boats but there is not sufficient evidence to make me arrive at any definite conclusion as to this. I think a fair estimate to be $150.00 calculated at "bush" rates. This leaves a nett balance of $1,988.97 as due by Griffith to the partnership.

The conclusions arrived at, therefore, are:—

On item of reference (2) due by Seegolam to partnership $1,004.11.
On item of reference (3) due by Griffith to partnership $268.86.

On item of reference (4) due by Griffith to partnership $1,988.97.

Showing a nett balance due to Seegolam by Griffith of $626.86.

I am of opinion on the facts disclosed by the evidence that each party should bear his own costs.

"The West Coast Railway Extension" is as follows, viz:—

A Railway with a single line of rails commencing at Greenwich Park on the right bank of the Essequibo River being the terminus of the existing West Coast Railway to Parika on the right bank of the said River provided that the Company may at any time with the previous consent of the Government lay down on all or any parts or part of the said Extension of the West Coast Railway an additional line of rails.

In consideration of the moneys to be provided by the Government under this Contract the Company shall pay to the Government one-sixth of the amount by which the revenue of the West Coast Railway from Vreed-en-Hoop to Parika exceeds the working expenses of such Railway such payment to begin from the time when the said Extension of the West Coast Railway is completed and ready for working and to be paid so soon as the accounts are made up in respect of each half-year ending June and December. Provided, however, that if in any half-year a loss is sustained on the working of the extended West Coast Railway from Vreed-en-Hoop to Parika the Company shall be entitled to deduct one-sixth of such loss or losses from the surplus to be paid to the Government in any subsequent half-year or half-years as hereinbefore provided until the total amount of such loss or losses has been repaid. 20. The subsidy payable by the Government to the Company under the aforesaid Indentures of 31st January, 1896, and 15th April, 1901, shall in no event be liable for any sum which may become due to the Government under this Contract and the said subsidy shall not be attachable by the Government for implement of any of the obligations of the Company in this Contract.

And in the event of any steamer service receiving a subsidy from the Government being instituted between Georgetown or Vreed-en-Hoop and places beyond Parika the conditions of payment of such subsidy shall be that all the steamers of such service shall call at Parika in connection with the Railway Company's trains at times to be specified by the Government and that the minimum rates and fares charged by all steamers of such service between Georgetown or Vreed-en-Hoop and Parika and any intermediate point and any point beyond Parika shall not be less than the combined fares between the same points by ferry rail and steamer.

22. The Government also agrees that should any balance not be required of the sum of £16,000 for the hereinbefore referred to Extension of the West Coast Railway, such balance may be used in giving direct connection between the Ferry Stelling at Vreed-en-Hoop and the railway line at that place in the construction of a stelling to connect the present terminus of the line with the front of the Ferry Stelling. Provided always that the Plan and Specification for any such work be previously approved by the Governor-in-Council.

23. The Company shall be at liberty to close Greenwich Park Station and to remove the buildings to Parika but shall retain the existing loop at Greenwich Park to allow of the crossing of trains at that place.

25. If any portion of the total sum to be provided by the Government for the construction and equipment of the Extension of the West Coast Railway be required in London for payment of any material supplied therefrom it shall be paid to the Company by the Crown Agents on application being made for the same.

1st October, 1913.

THE Deputy Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following Report by the Assistant Government Bacteriologist on the probable cause of sickness amongst Mules on Plantations Bath, Blairmont, Providence and Springlands.

By Command,

G. BALL GREENE,
Acting Assistant Government Secretary.

REPORT OF EPIDEMIOLOGICAL SURVEY AND INVESTIGATION INTO PROBABLE CAUSES OF SICKNESS AMONGST MULES ON PLANTATIONS BATH, BLAIRMONT, PROVIDENCE AND SPRINGLANDS.

History.—The first cases appear to have occurred amongst the horses owned by a man named Joseph, near Pln. Bath, who lost four or five horses about the month of August, 1912, all creole horses and all bred locally.

The next cases occurred amongst the horses owned by a man named Ram Persad in the same district, near Pln. Bath, in September, 1912. He lost eight horses at intervals of about a few days out of a total of fourteen animals affected.

The mules on Pln Bath appear to have been first affected early in October, 1912, during grinding operations on the estate; a total of forty-six mules were affected, of whom thirty-five died during a period of about twelve months. The most severe cases dying in five weeks and the more chronic ones taking as long as six months.

On Pln. Blairmont the grinding finished in February, 1913, and this estate lost three mules and two horses out of a total of about eight or ten mules and four horses affected, the total number of animals on the estate being thirty mules and four horses. The sickness started early in May, 1913. The mules had mixed freely with the Bath animals during the previous six months.

At Pln. Springlands eleven mules were loaned to Pln. Bath to assist in getting off the crops of that estate. The mules returned to Pln. Springlands about the end of March, 1913. The first case of sickness occurred about April 9th, 1913, and of a total of thirteen mules and two ponies affected four mules and one pony died.

At Pln. Providence sixteen mules were loaned to Pln. Bath for three months, these animals returned home in March, 1913: the whole of these animals were isolated for six weeks after their return from Pln. Bath.

About May, 1913, eight animals appeared to be affected and were isolated. Of these animals two died in June and two in July, 1913.

Incubation Period.—Very uncertain but would appear to be a matter of several weeks in most cases.

Description of Disease.—The accounts of the clinical symptoms given by the various observers interviewed tally so closely that there can be little doubt as to the identity of the disease in each case.

The main symptoms observed were briefly as follows:—

Loss of condition, pyrexia associated with a very slow pulse, progressive anæmia, paralysis of hind legs, paresis of hind-quarters, weakness, hæmaglobinuria in small percentage of the cases (33 per cent. one estate), on others it appears to have been transient only. The animals gradually become comatose and died quietly. No convulsions seem to have been present. Jaundice was seldom observed. Hæmorrhages into the conjunctiva appear to have been fairly frequent. Incontinence of urine was present in a fair proportion of cases and several observers noticed that after micturition the animals experienced considerable difficulty in retracting the penis, and in some cases the rectal mucus membrane after defæcation. Temperatures taken by me ranged from 98° to 101° but I was informed they had previously been up to 105° F.

Duration of Illness.—The more severe cases appear to have proved fatal in about three weeks after onset of symptoms, but the chronic cases ran a course of six months and over before proving fatal.

Morbid Anatomy.—Post mortem examinations have been made in three cases, and I am indebted to Capt. Farrant, F.R.C.V.S., for particulars of the two carried out by him, they differ in no important particulars from my own observations.

The internal organs generally were anæmic, and hæmorrhages were present under the pleura, pericardium and the serous coat of the intestine. The kidneys were very pale and anæmic but the capsules stripped well a few hæmorrhages under capsule. There were hæmorrhages under the capsule of the liver and in one case jaundice was present. The spleen did not appear specially enlarged in any case, a few hæmorrhages were present under the capsule and in the substance also, in one case old perisplenitis appears to have been present. The Brain, Spinal Cord, Cerebro-spinal Fluid and Meninges appeared normal in all these cases. In one case a clot of blood was observed over the optic thalamus.

MICROSCOPIC AND LABORATORY EXAMINATIONS.

Fresh blood was examined immediately after being drawn from the mule. No flagellates were detected.

Fresh Brain Squash.—A fair quantity of pigment detected in the capillaries.

Fresh Cerebro-Spinal Fluid.—Nothing of an abnormal character detected.

Stained Spleen Smear.—A large amount of pigment present, with degenerated red blood cells.

Stained Blood Slides.—A general anæmia, with fair number of polymorphonuclear and large mononuclear cells present. No flagellates or Protozoa detected.

The following investigations were carried out on my return to the Laboratory :—

Meningococcus.—Sterile glucose broth inoculated with cerebro-spinal fluid with aseptic precautions as far as possible at time of post mortem. Subsequently plated out in blood agar plates and colonies investigated. The remainder of the broth was centrifugalised; part of the deposit again plated in blood agar, the remainder spread on a glass slide and examined by Gram's stain. The presence of Staphylococcus Albus only was detected. The Diplococcus Intercellularis Meningitidis was not detected.

Cerebro-Spinal Fluid.—A quantity of cerebro-spinal fluid was obtained from the sub-dural space with a sterile pipette, and preserved in sterilised normal saline.

Cultivations failed to show the Meningococcus.

Centrifugalised deposit showed the cells present in normal cerebro-spinal fluid only. No excess of polymorphonuclear cells detected.

No Meningococci detected in cultivation or deposit.

Blood.—About 5 cc. of blood was drawn off during life into sterile sodium citrate solution. Direct examination of the fluid failed to show the presence of flagellate forms of protozoa. The centrifugalised deposit suitably stained failed to show the presence of a Meningococcus, a Trypanosome or a Pyreplasma.

Forty blood smears obtained from ten mules showing a degree of pyrexia varying from 99° F. to 101.5° F. were microscopically examined. No Trypanosomes were detected.

Pathology.—Portions of Brain, Spinal Cord, Spleen, Liver, Kidneys, Lung and Intestines were preserved in sublimate alcohol, subsequently prepared, and sections cut in the Laboratory for examination.

The Kidneys showed a small amount of cloudy swelling in the urinary tubules. The spleen showed a large amount of pigment and degenerated blood cells present.

The spinal cord appeared normal except for a small amount of small round cell infiltration surrounding the blood capillaries. No pus cells were detected nor meningococci.

A similar condition was observed in a section taken from the base of the brain.

Ticks.—A large number of ticks were removed from infected mules. The contents of the intestines of several which were gorged with blood were examined for flagellates protozoa, etc.

The ticks examined were of the sub-family Ixodine genus. Ixodes.

Biting Flies.—The contents of the intestines from several flies caught whilst sucking blood from infected mules were examined as above. The flies examined were of the family Muscidae genus. Stomoxys, and the family Tabanidae genus. Tabanus.

Summary.—The failure to detect the presence of the Diplococcus Intercellularis Meningitidis (Weichselbaun) together with the normal condition of the cerebro-spinal fluid, both as regards the absence of the organism and the character of its cellular elements, is opposed to the diagnosis of epidemic Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis. This conclusion is supported by the microscopic appearances of the spinal cords and brain examined, apart from clinical symptoms on which point I am unable to give an opinion. But the history of the outbreak, the varying time between exposure to infection and the onset of symptoms, together with the marked anæmia, occasional and transient hæmoglobinuria, would seem to point to an insect carried disease of a chronic nature. The clinical symptoms closely correspond to the disease known as Mal de Caderas and to a lesser degree to the disease known as Baberia Equi. The former disease is caused by Trypanosoma Equinum and is supposed to be conveyed by means of a biting fly. The latter disease is caused by the presence in the blood of Pireplasma Equi and conveyed to animals by the means of the tick.

Unfortunately I have been unable to demonstrate either of these organisms as present but the failure to do so may possibly lie in the fact that these organisms are not present in the blood at all stages of the disease.

Prophylaxis.—Fortunately in all the above diseases the prophylactic measures are identical and are briefly as follows :—

1. Isolation of infected animals.
2. Thorough cleaning of stables with crude paraffin and subsequent lime-whiting with a lime-wash containing an antiseptic (5 per cent. crude Carbolic acid is suggested).
3. Thorough burning off of infected pastures.
4. Adoption of the two or three paddock system for segregating subsequent cases that may occur.

5. The systematic and regular use of an insecticide on the animals especially before crossing pastures suspected to be infected; a suitable wash for animals is as follows :—

Soft Soap	$\frac{1}{4}$ lb.
Water	$\frac{1}{4}$ gallon.

Dissolve the soap in the water and add with constant stirring 2 gallons crude Petroleum or Paraffin.

6. The harness should be treated with a similar mixture.

I beg to tender sincere thanks for assistance in this investigation to W. M.B. Shields, Esquire, Captain Farrant, F.R.C.V.S., and the Managers and Overseers of the various estates visited.

(Sgd.) E. P. MINETT,
Assistant Government Medical Officer of Health, and Bacteriologist.

N.B.—Since the above was written Dr. Minett has identified the Trypanosoma Equinum in blood of a horse recently ill in New Amsterdam.

Government Notices.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara.

450. 30th September, 1913.

THE Deputy Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following instructions issued by the Board of Trade in connection with the precautions against explosives, fire, &c., on small vessels.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST EXPLOSION AND FIRE ON FISHING AND OTHER SMALL VESSELS FITTED WITH INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINES.

AS numerous sailing vessels are now being fitted with auxiliary motors, the Board of Trade desire to draw the attention of owners, shipbuilders, motor manufacturers, and others, to the necessity for the adoption of such precautions as will minimise the special risk of explosion and fire accompanying the use of inflammable oil-fuel.

It should be well known that the lower the flash-point of the oil the greater is the danger of explosion or fire. Petroleum spirit, such as petrol, which has a low flash-point and gives off inflammable vapour at ordinary atmospheric temperatures, is more dangerous than the ordinary brands of kerosene or paraffin oil, which have guaranteed flash-points of 73 degrees Fahr. or above. Crude petroleum oils from which the spirit has been extracted or petroleum residues which have higher flash-points than common paraffin oil are still safer; but even these oils, when exposed to an atmosphere of higher temperature than the flash-point of the oil, give off inflammable vapour which only requires to be brought into contact with a light for an explosion to take place.

(1.) VESSELS IN WHICH ORDINARY PARAFFIN OIL ONLY IS USED.

Many vessels are now using ordinary paraffin oil for the motors both for starting and running. But, notwithstanding that the flash-point is not below 73 degrees Fahr. (close test), great care is required in arranging the motor, tanks, and fittings on board, and also in the subsequent management of the system at sea. There have been serious cases of fire through the ignition of paraffin oil in steel or iron vessels when there has been little or no woodwork near, and the danger is obviously greater in wooden vessels. Recently a fishing vessel which used paraffin oil in the motor, was totally destroyed by fire in the following circumstances:—The engine-man, finding the bilge suction-pipe choked, blew steam through it to clear it. There was oil or oil-refuse in the bilge-well, which was heated by the steam, as it issued from the pipe, to above the flash-point, and oil vapour was given off. The vapour was ignited by the lamp which the engine-man was using and an explosion occurred followed by a fire which spread rapidly causing the crew to take to the boat and abandon the ship shortly after the outbreak.

The greatest care should therefore be taken to prevent an outbreak of fire as paraffin oil or woodwork soaked with such oil, when once on fire, is very difficult to extinguish. The greatest safeguard against explosion of fire is cleanliness; consequently, the bilges and woodwork should be kept free of oil or oil-refuse, and the tanks and fittings should be perfectly tight.

FISHING VESSELS.

The motor, tanks, etc., should, in all ordinary cases be fitted in a separate compartment; and it is very desirable that the installation should be fitted on board under the supervision of some responsible person or body who will see that the arrangements and fittings are satisfactory.

Oil Tanks.—Either a metal tray or a metal-lined wooden casing or dam should be fitted under the tank to intercept any oil which may escape from the tank. The oil-filling, air, and relief pipes should be carried above the deck so that the oil vapour displaced from the tank when it is being filled may have free escape to the open air. The openings through the deck for the pipes should be oil-tight in order that any oil which may be spilled in filling or by an overflow will not escape below into the bilges. The deck round the filling and vent pipes should be sheathed with lead. The tanks should be tested hydraulically before being put on board, and wire gauze diaphragms should be fitted to all inlet and outlet pipe openings. The oil used for cleaning or for trimming lamps should not be drawn from the motor oil tanks but should be kept in a separate tank situated in a part of the vessel as distant as possible from the engine space and not within 6 feet of the cooking stove, and the lamps should be trimmed there. No cocks should be fitted to the motor tanks except for the motor pipe connections.

Oil-Pipes.—These should be seamless pipes, and made with easy bends, and the joints should be conical, metal to metal. Cocks should be fitted at each end of the fuel-pipe.

Blow-Lamps.—The flame from the blow-lamp when in use for starting the engine should be enclosed.

Bilge-Wells.—The bilge-wells and the recess for the flywheel should be accessible for cleaning. Cement is recommended for lining the bilges and wells, as it will protect the woodwork from the oil which may obtain access to the bilges.

Flooring.—The wooden flooring, particularly near the motor or tank should be sheathed with metal. The motor should stand in a substantial metal tray, or the bilges should be cemented underneath to form a bed and there should be facilities for cleaning underneath the motor.

Ventilation.—The motor-space should be satisfactorily ventilated, preferably by substantial cow-ventilators, one of which should be carried down to the lower part of the space. In lieu of the other ventilators, however, a suitable skylight or other uptake may be adopted.

Insulation.—Any part of the woodwork subject to excessive heat from the cylinder-heads or exhaust-pipes should be sheathed with metal, and, if necessary, an asbestos lining should also be fitted. It is also desirable that mushroom-ventilators should be fitted in the deck, over the cylinder-heads, if there is excessive radiation of heat from them.

Exits.—The exit from the engine space should be easy, and situated as far as practicable from the oil-tank or bilge-well.

Existing Auxiliary Vessels.—In many of these vessels which were originally only provided with sails, the available space has been so limited that the motor and oil-tanks have been placed in the crew-space which has also contained the cooking-stove. This is a most undesirable arrangement, as the hot stove increases the risk of fire by heating the space to a temperature approaching that of the flash-point of the oil. There is also the possibility of red-hot cinders from the stove falling into the bilge and causing fire, if the bilge should contain paraffin oil, or if the woodwork should be saturated with oil. If in existing vessels it is not possible to fit the motors in a compartment separate from the crew-space, special precautions are necessary. The stove should be securely fixed on a metal bed, asbestos-lined, or otherwise insulated, to prevent the heat striking through. A metal guard of suitable height should be placed round it to prevent the escape of red-hot cinders. The stove should be placed at the side of the crew-space farthest from the tank, and the exit from the space should be at the end of the compartment farthest from the tank and stove. The oil-tanks, pipes, blow-lamps, bilge-wells, flooring, ventilation and insulation, should be as already described; the tanks being fitted, if at all possible, in a separate adjacent compartment.

CARGO COASTING VESSELS.

The motor-space should in all cases be a separate compartment, and the general precaution to be taken against explosion and fire should be the same as described above for fishing vessels.

(2.) VESSELS USING PARAFFIN FOR GENERAL RUNNING BUT USING PETROL FOR STARTING.

In fishing, cargo, or other vessels, which are fitted with engines using petrol for starting and which ply during the night, thus rendering it necessary to have lighted lamps in the motor space, the tanks containing the petrol should, whenever possible, be placed in a well-ventilated compartment, separate from the engine-room, and, preferably, on the deck. As the quantity of petrol carried for starting need only be small, there should be no difficulty in finding a suitable place for the tank. In no case should a petrol-tank or petrol-can, either empty or full, be placed in a crew's living-quarters, or in the compartment where the ship's lamps are trimmed and lighted. Wire-gauze diaphragms should be fitted to all outlets or openings in petrol tanks.

Receptacles should be provided to catch any overflow of petrol from the engine when starting; and these should be fitted with wire-gauze coverings, and should be emptied or removed to a safe place as soon as possible after an overflow has occurred.

(3.) GENERAL.

Fire Extinguishing Appliances.—An ample supply of sand in a box with a scoop for spreading it over a fire, or two or more chemical extinguishers, should be provided, in addition to the ordinary hose or equivalent bucket equipment for extinguishing fire by water.

Reversible Engines.—The motors should be capable of driving the propeller astern as well as ahead.

Boats.—Boats should be carried in accordance with the requirements of the Statutory Life-Saving Appliances Rules.

Lights and Sound-Signals.—Any vessel at sea which is propelled by machinery must carry the lights and sound-signals for steam-vessels.

Engine Man.—It is very desirable that the man placed in charge of the motors should possess an elementary knowledge of oil-engines and of the nature of dangerous oils, and it would be well if makers of motors would supply printed instructions relating to the working of the engine and the nature of the oils used, to be exhibited in a prominent position in the vicinity of the engine.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 23RD DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

JAMES

versus

JABOUR.

The following decision was read:—

HILL, actg. J.: This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate who gave judgment for the plaintiff (respondent) for damages for breach of contract.

The men Boason and Hercules, although suggested by the respondent to the appellant to do certain work in connection with the making of the garments for breach of contract in connection with which damages are claimed, were nevertheless, in my opinion, properly found to be servants of the appellant for whose acts he would in the circumstances be responsible, and I do not consider the facts as to "trying on" and payment to Hercules, remove them from the category of persons in the employ of appellant for whose acts he would be liable.

As a matter of fact, the Magistrate found that the misfit of the garments arose from bad "cutting out" for which appellant himself was responsible.

I see no reason to disturb the Magistrate's decision, and dismiss the appeal with costs.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 23RD DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

FOO

versus

HENRY.

The following judgment was read:—

HILL, actg. J.: This is an action on an agreement by which defendant agreed to deliver 176 bags paddy or pay the value.

Plaintiff sues on transfer of session and action and there is no defence filed. The value of paddy in November, 1911—the date of the agreement—is shown by the evidence of Mr. Davis to have been $1.80 per bag, and defendant has paid in all $115.00 on account. There will be judgment for $201.80 and costs.

SCHMEIDEN.

versus

ALTAFFHUSEIN.

The following judgment was read :—

HILL, actg. J. : Plaintiff in this action is suing on quantum meruit. He entered into a contract with defendant to do certain work. He alleges that, ab initio, there was a rescission of the contract, and that he was told to "go ahead" with the understanding that his weekly pay-list for labour would be paid by defendant. This was not done, and he ceased to work, and now sues on quantum meruit. His story is uncorroborated, and most improbable. For instance, defendant, in order to safeguard himself, inserted in the original contract a proviso that the weekly payments were to be fixed by him. Is it likely that he would have, without question, departed from this agreement, from the very commencement, and agreed to pay plaintiff whatever amount he (plaintiff) might ask for, every week?

The principle of law involved is that a plaintiff having contracted to do an entire work for a specific sum can recover nothing except it can be shown that it was the defendant's fault that the work was incomplete, or that there is something to justify the conclusion that the parties have entered into a new contract but no claim in the nature of quantum meruit can be founded on a special contract which has not been performed, unless the person who has a right to insist on its performance has elected to accept some benefit resulting from its partial performance, or the circumstances are such as to show, in some other way, that a new contract has arisen between the parties.

I find that there never was any rescission of the original contract, and never any departure from it, and that plaintiff has received all he was entitled to receive under his contract. If he made an unremunerative contract it is his misfortune, but this Court cannot assist him in the matter.

There will be judgment for defendant with costs.

THIS 25TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

RECEIVER GENERAL.

versus

MANOEL DE PAIVA.

The following judgment was read :—

EARNshaw, actg. C.J. : In this case the Receiver General petitions for a fiat for the recovery by parate execution of $171.96 being duly payable on $104.22 proof gallons of rum at the rate of $1.65 per proof gallon which is the difference between the late Excise Duty of fifty cents and the duty of two dollars and fifteen cents a proof gallon on so much of the stock of rum on hand on 1st April, 1913, as represents an excess of the assessment for the financial year 1912-1913.

Manoel de Paiva, the opposer, opposed the granting of the fiat and requested to be heard. The hearing took place on September 5th last.

The grounds of opposition are as follows :—

1. The opposer denies that the stock on hand on the 1st of April, 1912-1913, was 406 gallons as alleged in the bill of particulars or that the excess was 04.22 gallons as alleged or any amount.

2. The opposer says that no stock was ever taken at his licensed premises on the 1st of April, 1913, and will contend that any stock taken subsequent to that date would be misleading and would not show the true position of the opposer's drawings of spirit from the Bond.

3. The opposer denies that he was ever assessed for the purpose of Retail Spirit Licence during the year 1912-1913 at the amount of 1,011 gallons or at any amount whatever.

4. The opposer says that so far from having any excess he has never availed himself of the full privileges pertaining to him by virtue of the system instituted by the Government covering a period of 5 years—and was and is still entitled by virtue of that system to draw from the Bond up to the 31st March, 1913, far more spirit than he has attempted to; on the contrary he has drawn far less spirit than the amount permitted to him.

5. The opposer will contend at the hearing that the spirit in his Retail Spirit Shop is his own bona fide property in connection with which he has already paid all just dues and taxes, excise or otherwise demanded by the Government and that any attempt to exact additional payment in regard therewith is unconstitutional and illegal inasmuch as such attempt savours of retrospective legislation.

In the decision in the case of the Receiver General v. De Freitas which I delivered as recently as August 26th last I dealt fully with the law and the practice as applied to petitions of this nature and I refer the parties thereto if necessary.

I restrict myself now to a consideration of the above grounds of opposition.

Ground (1) imputes inaccuracy to the claim but I find on the evidence, documentary and oral, that there is no inaccuracy as alleged and the opposition therefore fails.

Even if the inaccuracy had been proved it would not, in my opinion, be fatal to the claim. An amendment which would have prejudiced nobody might have been made, and the fiat granted accordingly.

As regards ground (2) the counsel for the opposer did not seriously address me. As however the same ground was strenuously and exhaustively argued in another case in which I shall deliver my decision immediately (Receiver General v. M. J. De Freitas) I do not deal with it at any length here.

I decide on it that if the stock was "checked" within a reasonable time of April 1st and under such circumstances that the stock in hand on that date or that stock minus the small quantity possibly sold in the interval between April 1st and the time when the stock was checked is properly carried out, there is a sufficient compliance with the law. The words on "the date of the coming into force of this Ordinance" are directory merely, not imperative or obligatory and it is not a condition precedent to making a valid claim that the stock should have been "checked" in this case on April 1st. On the facts I find such a compliance with the law as above set forth and I over-rule this ground of opposition.

Ground (3) out of deference to my decision in the case decided on August 26th was not argued. For the reasons there given I find that this opposer was assessed for the purpose of Retail Spirit Licence during 1912-1913 at 1,011 gallons.

Ground (4) also was not argued. I cannot however see in it, even if the statements therein are true, any reason for refusing to grant the fiat.

The opposer relied chiefly on ground (5). It alleges that any attempt to exact additional payment in the circumstances is unconstitutional and illegal as savouring of retrospective legislation.

As far as I understood the argument the alleged illegality lies in the alleged retrospective nature of the legislation.

But even if the Ordinance in question were retrospective I cannot find that it would therefore be illegal and unconstitutional. In one sense almost all legislation is retrospective. It contemplates the immediate past and introduces changes for the future. This Ordinance is not retrospective in the sense of making legal acts which when they were committed in the past were illegal, as in the case of Acts of Indemnity, nor does it render illegal any past acts which were legal at the time of their commission. The Legislature could even do the latter, though from an ethical standpoint such legislation might be condemned.

The Ordinance in question was passed on March 29th and section 12 deals with a state of affairs existing later. It imposes a further tax on rum already out of bond and in the retail spirit shops. In that way it differs from the usual practice. But a new system of imposing and collecting duties on rum was being introduced, and the object of this special legislation is as I have said before to provide that spirit dealers should pay $1.65 per gallon more in cases where they had paid 50 cents per gallon only on the same or a similar amount of rum which they still had in stock on April 1st, or at the beginning of the financial year. About such legislation I see nothing retrospective, nothing illegal and nothing unconstitutional.

The opposition therefore fails and the fiat is granted with costs.

THE RECEIVER GENERAL.

versus

M. J. DE FREITAS.

(5 or 7 Werk-en-Rust.)

The following judgment was read :—

EARNshaw, Actg. C.J. In this case the Receiver General petitions for a fiat for the recovery by parate execution from the opposer of the sum of $2,623.50, being duty payable on 1,590 gallons of rum under the provisions of section 12 of Ordinance 1 of 1913 as amended by section 2 of Ordinance 11 of 1913.

This is the fourth petition of this nature which I have heard, and as I have discussed fully the law and practice as applied to such petitions in the decisions in those cases I refer the parties thereto if necessary, and particularly to the first of them. The three cases are Receiver General v. De Freitas, August 26th, Receiver General v. De Paiva, September 25th and the Receiver General v. A. De Freitas, September 25th.

The grounds of opposition now set forth are as follows :—

1. The said Maria Jose De Freitas denies that any duty is or ever was payable in respect of the quantity of rum mentioned in the summation or any part thereof.

2. She denies that there was ever any assessment of the retail spirit shop in question for the year 1912-1913. If there was any assessment it was not made in terms of the Tax Ordinance, 1912.

3. If there was any assessment it was from the 16th day of May, 1912, the date the Licence was issued to the 31st March, 1913, and not for the preceding 12 months as required by the Ordinance and such an assessment is not within the terms of section 12 of Ordinance No. 1 of 1913.

4. She denies that there was any excess of the assessment (if any) for the financial year 1912-1913 or that 1,590 gallons of rum represent the excess for the said period.

5. She says that if there was any excess such excess is not correctly stated.

6. She denies that she took from bond the amount of rum stated in the summation during the preceding 12 months, i.e., 1912-1913.

7. If any rum was taken from bond by her she says such rum was taken between the 16th day of May, 1912, the date when the Licence was issued and the 31st day of March, 1913, and not during the preceding 12 months.

8. She says that she will contend that no additional duty is recoverable from her because her takings from bond if any were not during the preceding 12 months but during part thereof, to wit 10½ months only.

9. She denies that the stock in hand was on the 1st April, 1913, 1,590 gallons or any part thereof.

10. She will contend that no legal obligation to pay any part of the duty sought to be recovered is imposed on her by Ordinance or otherwise.

11. She will contend that it is a condition precedent to the imposition or collection of additional duty on stock in hand on the 1st April, 1913, that:—

(a) The Spirit Dealer should be holder of Retail Spirit Licence for the 12 months preceding 1st April, 1913, and not as in this case from 16th May, 1912.

(b) The assessment must be for the same period and such assessment must have been made in accordance with section 47 of Ordinance No. 2 of 1912.

(c) The rum alleged to have been taken from bond must have been taken during the said period and not as in this case during the 10½ months preceding the 1st April, 1913.

It appears that the opposer acquired a "Retail Spirit Shop Licence" "to keep from 16th day of May, 1912, to the 31st day of March, 1913, a Retail Spirit Shop" on premises situated at lot No. 5 or 7, Werk-en-Rust.

The circumstances under which she acquired that licence are set forth in Exhibit A, which is her petition therefor to the Excise Board.

For at least fifteen years previous to March 31st, 1913, the premises aforesaid had been used as a retail spirit shop, and the usual licence had been granted annually.

Messrs. Nascimento and Rodrigues were the holders of the licence for the financial year 1912-1913, and that licence expired on March 31st, 1913.

They had mortgaged "the said shop with the premises" to the opposer for the sum of $17,500.

One of the terms of the Mortgage was that the Licencees should every year apply for a renewal of the said Licence and sign the necessary bonds; but in March this year (I am quoting the petition of the opposer) the said Licencees with the deliberate intention of preventing Your Petitioner (i.e., the present opposer) from obtaining the fruit of the Mortgage failed to sign their bond although they had applied for the renewal of the Licence.

Under the above and many other circumstances set forth in Exhibit A the opposer applied for a Retail Spirit Shop Licence to sell spirits on the aforesaid premises, and because of those circumstances a period of nearly seven weeks elapsed before the licence was granted. The licence therefore dates from May 16th instead of from April 1st.

The chief object of the opposer was to maintain the value of the property which had been mortgaged to her, and by sanctioning the licence the Excise Board assisted her. She now tries to take advantage of those peculiar circumstances so as to defeat, if possible, the plain and manifest intention of Ordinances 1 and 11 of 1913.

Her first contention is that the licence above granted is a "new licence" within the terms of section 47 (1) of Ordinance 2 of 1912 and that the assessment should have been made as "in the case of a new licence granted for the first time after the commencement" of that Ordinance.

In such cases, i.e., cases of new licences, the law provided that "the holder of such licence shall pay the same sum as is paid by the person who keeps the retail spirit shop nearest to the shop for which such new licence is granted."

The Excise Board did not regard the licence granted to the opposer as a new licence and assessed it in accordance with the provisions in force as regards shops for which other than new licences are granted.

The section (47 (1) of Ordinance 2 of 1912) satisfies me that by "new licence" is meant primarily a licence granted for premises on which a retail spirit shop had not existed at any rate immediately before as in this case. There was a licence to keep this retail spirit shop before, and the licence granted to the opposer was not new in the sense meant by the Ordinance. Any other interpretation would result in "a manifest absurdity."

The assessment could very well be made, and was made under the provisions which apply in the case of premises previously licensed: and it would have been at least foolish to have sought out the nearest rumshop and to have made the assessment according to that. Moreover the opposer acquiesced in the assessment then made. Indeed not the slightest objection was taken thereto, and if necessary, I should hold that it is too late to take the objection now and in the present proceedings. Her previous conduct in accepting the assessment amount to an estoppel.

As her licence Exhibit C shows the assessment was at the yearly rate of $3,908 (or 1,954 gallons).

Because she held this licence from May 16th instead of from April 1st, and took out rum from bond thereunder from May 16th instead of from April 1st, she now contends that no additional duty is recoverable under Ordinances 1 and 11 of 1913. It is contended that the words "whose takings from bond during the preceding twelve months have exceeded their assessments for the same period" cannot be applied to her.

As the licence shows the assessment was at a yearly rate, and was therefore for the whole of the twelve months in question, and in arriving at the amount of rum on which excise was payable she has been given credit for twelve months in deducting the amount of the assessment instead of for twelve months minus forty-six days. This is an advantage to the opposer.

I interpret the words "during the preceding twelve months" as meaning "any time during the currency of the preceding twelve months." The period from May 16th, 1912, to April 1st, 1913, was a time during the currency of the preceding twelve months and I over-rule the objection.

As any other objection has been already discussed in the three cases above referred to, I decide that all the objections fail and I grant the rel as prayed with costs.

versus

A. DE FREITAS.
(A & B, Albouystown.)

The following Judgment was read:—

EARNshaw, Actg. C. J.: In this case the Receiver General petitions the Chief Justice for a rel for the recovery by parate execution of $4,318.64 being "duty payable on 2,617.36 proof gallons of rum at the rate of $1.65 per proof gallon which is "the difference between the Excise Duty of fifty cents and the duty of two dollars and fifteen cents a gallon on so much of the stock of rum on hand on 1st April, 1913, as represents an excess of the assessment for the financial year 1912-1913.

The opposer opposes the granting of the same on the following grounds:—

1. The said Antonio De Freitas denies that any duty is or ever was payable in respect of the quantity of rum mentioned in the summation or any part thereof.

2. He denies that there was ever any assessment for the financial year 1912-1913. If there was any assessment for the said period it was not made as required by law.

3. He denies that there was any excess of the assessment (if any) for the financial year 1912-1913.

4. He says that if there was any excess such excess is not correctly stated.

5. That duty had already been paid on all the rum alleged to have been on hand on the 1st April, 1913, in accordance with the law which was in existence when the said rum was taken from Bond and it is not competent for the Legislature to impose a further and additional duty thereon.

6. He denies that he took from Bond the quantity of rum stated in the summation to have been taken by him or any part thereof.

7. He denies that the stock in hand was on the 1st April, 1913, 2,921 gallons.

8. He says that the stock was checked on the 3rd day of April, 1913, and not on the 1st day of April, 1913, as required by the Ordinance.

9. He will contend that checking the stock on the 1st day of April, 1913, is a condition precedent to the right to recover duty under the Ordinance.

10. He denies that the amount claimed is now due or payable by him.

11. He will contend that no legal obligation to pay any part of the duty to be recovered is imposed on him by Ordinance or otherwise.

In a previous case in which I delivered my decision on August 16th last I dealt fully with the law and practice as applied to petitions of this nature.

I also considered fully in that case grounds (1), (2), (3), (4), (6), (10) and (11) alleged in this case, and for that reason counsel for the opposer did not argue those grounds at the hearing of this petition.

For the reasons given in the case referred to I overrule the objections made on the above grounds.

There are left grounds (5), (7), (8) and (9). Grounds (7), (8) and (9) really depend on each other and will be considered together.

It is alleged in ground (5) that under the circumstances it was not competent for the Legislature to impose the further and additional duty now claimed.

No argument was however advanced which tended in any way to show that the sections of the Ordinance in question were in any way ultra vires.

The same question was argued in the case of Receiver General v. De Paiva in which I have given my decision this morning. There the legislation was said to be retrospective and therefore unconstitutional and illegal. I do not see that I can usefully add anything to what I said then, and for the reasons then given I decide that the sections of the Ordinances in question are not ultra vires retrospective, unconstitutional or illegal.

The objection taken in grounds (7), (8) and (9) turn on the following words of section 12 of the Ordinance (i.e., Ord. I of 1913):—

"Provided that on the date of the coming into force of this Ordinance the stocks . . . shall be checked."

Section 69 of the Ordinance fixes this date as the "first day of April, 1913."

It is clear on the evidence that the stock in question was not checked on the 1st April. It is also clear that it was checked not later than the 3rd April.

The opposer contends that this direction to check on the 1st April is imperative or obligatory, and that checking on that date is a condition precedent to recovering the duty claimed under the Ordinance.

On behalf of the Receiver General it was argued that the direction to check on the 1st April is "directory" merely and not imperative, and that if the checking took place on that date or within a reasonable time therefrom there was a sufficient compliance with the terms of the section.

Now it is quite clear that checking on the 2nd or the 3rd April as distinct from the 1st April would not in any way injure the opposer.

No rum was taken into stock during those days, and even if more rum had been taken into stock, it would have been very easy under the regulations to discover the amount and make the necessary deduction. It is possible that some of the rum in stock might have been sold between April 1st and the time of the checking, but this sale could only be an advantage to a spirit seller where the excess on the assessment happened to be more than the rum found in stock at the checking. In this case however the stock on hand when checked was 2,921 gallons and the taxable excess was 2,617.36 gallons only. The opposer is therefore not injured in any way by the late checking. Nor does the Receiver General suffer from any sales which may have taken place in the interval between April 1st and the time of the checking.

Justice therefore does not require that the words should be interpreted as imperative or obligatory.

Now the Ordinance in question is an Ordinance to enforce certain taxes for the Public Use of the Colony during the Financial Year 1913-1914.

I have examined the last nine of these annual Ordinances and I find in each a section which provides that it shall come into force on April 1st. That date fixes the beginning of the financial year. The words now being considered, namely:—"the date of the coming into force of this Ordinance" merely adopt that date. There is no particular virtue in April 1st as opposed to April 2nd or April 3rd, and it might well have happened that April 1st was a Sunday, on which day of course no checking would have been done.

Without discussing here the numerous cases in which certain words were held to be directory merely, and the numerous other cases in which other words were held to be imperative or obligatory I hold in this case that the direction is not imperative, and therefore that checking on April 1st is not a condition precedent.

I find as a fact that the checking was done at or about the beginning of the financial year and within a reasonable time reckoning from April 1st, and I hold that this is a sufficient compliance with the Ordinance. To hold otherwise would manifestly defeat the plain intention of the Ordinance, which in this case is that on 2,617.36 gallons of rum on which a duty of fifty cents only per gallon had been paid, there shall be collected a further duty of $1.65 per gallon.

I therefore overrule all the objections and grant the jud as prayed with costs.

GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA,

29th September, 1913.

THE Veterinary Committee of the Board of Agriculture directs the attention of Planters, Horse and Stock-owners to the existence in British Guiana of the fatal equine disease "Mal de caderas." This disease is at present widespread in the county of Berbice.

Its principal symptoms are :—

1. Weakness which makes rapid progress even though the appetite remains good.
2. Fever in the initiatory or acute stages; later and in the chronic ones the temperature tends to become normal to sub-normal.
3. Early in the attack the hind-quarters of the animal become paralyzed, as the animal walks its hind-quarters sway and it often falls down. Whilst in the stable the animal supports itself against the wall.
4. In some cases blood or albumen is present in the urine.
5. Eruptions may occur on the neck, shoulders and hind-quarters.
6. In acute cases the animals may die in about three weeks from the time the symptoms become noticeable whilst in chronic cases they may live as long as from four to six months.

The following precaution should be taken against the transmission of this disease :—

1. The immediate isolation of animals suspected of being infected.
2. The thorough washing-down of stables with kerosine oil or chloro-naphtholeum and subsequent lime-washing with a strong lime-wash containing 5 per cent. of crude carbolic acid or of similar antiseptic strong-smelling preparation.
3. The burning-off of pastures where infected animals have grazed.
4. It is highly important that the animals should be protected from the bites of cowflies, stable flies, ticks, fleas, etc. The systematic and regular use of an insecticide on all horses, mules, and asses which are subject to infection by the disease especially before crossing pastures where infected animals have been is strongly recommended.

A good wash for this purpose is prepared by dissolving $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. of soft soap in $\frac{1}{2}$ gallon of water and adding with constant stirring a mixture of 2 gallons of kerosine and $\frac{1}{2}$ gallon of fish oil. 1 part of this mixture is to be added to 8 parts of water and the animals washed with it daily.

In view of the very dangerous and fatal nature of this disease and the slight probability of any animal attacked by it making a satisfactory recovery, the acting Government Veterinary Surgeon recommends that affected animals be at once destroyed and their carcasses burned.

Notification of suspected cases should be made at the earliest opportunity directly to the acting Government Veterinary Surgeon at his office, Science and Agriculture Department, Georgetown.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 30TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1913.

J. M. REID, Appellant,

versus

M. J. DE PASSOS, Respondent.

The following decision was read:—

EARNshaw, acting C.J.: The respondent herein was charged in the Court below with unlawfully and knowingly concealing on the 2nd July, 1913, certain tobacco the duties in respect of which had not been paid.

The Magistrate in his reasons for decision after reviewing the evidence finds that there is no sufficient evidence of concealment by the defendant as to banish from his mind the doubt which necessarily and reasonably arises as to whether some one other than the defendant might not have put the tobacco where it was without defendant's knowledge and dismisses the complaint without calling on the defendant. From this decision the prosecution appeals on one ground only, as follows:—"The decision is erroneous in point of law inasmuch as the evidence given by the complainant was prima facie proof that the defendant knowingly concealed the tobacco as charged" . . . "and such proof threw the onus on the defendant of proving his innocence which he failed to do; and the Magistrate erred in dismissing the complaint on the ground set forth in his reasons for decision."

In the argument the appellant relied on the case of the Attorney General v. Siddons (1830) 1 C. & J. 220 where the only evidence in support of proceedings for a penalty for harbouring and concealing untaxed tobacco was the fact that it was found upon the defendant's premises, and Alexander C.B. in delivering judgment said: "It is an occurrence of every day to convict upon such evidence, as if the rule were otherwise the law would be completely inoperative. It is always competent to the defendant to prove his innocence if he can, but the finding is prima facie evidence upon which these convictions proceed. If he does not prove his innocence, the law presumes his guilt from the fact of the goods being found concealed upon his premises."

I agree entirely with Alexander, C.B., in the above statement of the practice, and magistrates should certainly follow the same. In the majority of cases of concealment the evidence is necessarily circumstantial. When a person conceals anything, he does not call the world to witness his concealment. To say that he conceals with all the world looking on would be a contradiction in terms. Usually, as in divorce cases, where direct evidence of acts of adultery is seldom forthcoming, the best evidence in such cases as these is circumstantial, not direct, and if circumstantial evidence by itself is regarded as insufficient in making out a prima facie case the law would, as Alexander, C.B., says, be completely inoperative.

I have set forth the above in order that complainants may not be unduly hampered when bringing such charges as this, but there is nothing in what I have said which can be regarded as a ground for reversing the decision of the Magistrate on this occasion.

The only ground alleged by the appellant is that the decision is erroneous in point of law and that the Magistrate erred in dismissing the complaint on the ground set forth. I cannot see that the Magistrate, when he, considering the evidence as a jury, finds a doubt which, he says, "necessarily and reasonably arises" as to the guilt of the defendant, is in any way dealing with a point of law. He is considering facts and facts merely, and deciding, just as a jury would, on the evidence before him.

He did not find a prima facie made out, and I cannot say that because he did not so find, he erred in law.

It is possible, or one might even say probable, that another Magistrate, bearing in mind what Alexander, C.B., said in the case quoted, might have come to a different conclusion on the evidence, found a prima facie case made out, and called upon the defendant to prove his innocence if he could.

But that is no ground for saying that the Magistrate in this case erred in point of law in finding as he did.

To adopt what Vaughan, B. said in the case already referred to I hold that in order to fix a party with the penalties of the Ordinance it is necessary that the Magistrate sitting as a jury should be satisfied by reasonable evidence that the party accused did the illegal act charged.

If the Magistrate after considering the evidence as in this case, is not so satisfied, but has a doubt which he says reasonably and necessarily arises, this Court cannot get behind his decision on the ground that it is erroneous in point of law. Of course in some cases if the alleged reason for appeal were that set forth in sub-section 8 of section 9 of Ordinance 13 of 1893 this Court might review a finding of fact but it cannot do so here. The appeal is therefore dismissed with costs.

THIS 1ST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1913.

APPLEWHAITE.

versus.

MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL.

The following Judgment was read:—

HILL J. (acting): This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate convicting the appellant of an offence under section 339 (2), Ordinance 13 of 1907, which is as follows:—

"If the occupier of any premises when requested 'by or on behalf of the Local Authority to state the name of the owner of the premises occupied by him, refuses or wilfully omits to disclose or willfully mis-states the same, he shall, unless he shows cause, to the satisfaction of the court for his refusal, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars."

"Owner" is defined in Section 2 as "the person for the time receiving the rack rent of the lands or premises in connexion with which the word is used, whether on his own account or as agent or representative for any other person, or who would so receive the same if such lands or premises were 'let at a rack rent.'"

To be liable under the Section above referred to a person has to

- Be the occupier of the premises.
- Be requested by or on behalf of the Local Authority to state the name of the owner of the premises.
- Refuse or wilfully omit to disclose or willfully mis-state, the name of the owner.
- To show cause for his refusal, or be liable.

The reasons of appeal are:

1. The decision is erroneous in point of law

- Because it has not been proved that the Defendant was the occupier.
- Because the contrary was proved.
- Because it has not been proved that the Defendant refused to give the name of the owner.
- Because it does not appear as to what part of lot 47 the name of the owner was required.

2. The decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict for the reasons mentioned in reason 1.

The appellant is the wife of a man named Applewhaite who lives on the premises, and she lives with him. He rents, he says, the premises from the owner Smith and pays rent to his agent Kingsley. It is contended that the appellant is as an occupier, in actual physical occupation, liable for refusal to disclose the name of the owner, knowledge having been proved against her.

I may say, at once, that in such cases knowledge can in the absence of express admission, be shown by conduct or acts and that, in my opinion, there need be no specific form of request, once what is intended is clear to the person to whom the request is made.

In the present case it is not contended for the appellant that no request was made, but by reasons 1 (c) it is alleged that she did not refuse to give the name of the owner. I am of opinion that, by her conduct, the Magistrate was justified in holding that it amounted to a refusal on her part to disclose his name, and I think also he was justified in, as he no doubt did, holding she knew who the owner was, or for her to refuse to disclose, there must be ability for her to disclose, had she so minded. This disposes of reason 1 (c) and (d), and as regards reason 1 (e) the evidence is sufficient to enable the Magistrate to conclude that the lot was sufficiently identified in connection with the request for the name of the owner.

But I am of opinion that the "occupier" in Section 339 (2) refers to the hirer or tenant of the premises, and not to his wife, except she be the hirer or tenant under such circumstances as would render her liable for the rent, e.g., long absence of her husband to whom she might be married (as in this case) in community, when she no doubt, would be for certain consequences, as well as advantages, he considered feme sole. In the present circumstances it is clear she would not be liable for any rent, there is no privity between her and the owner and I cannot see that the fact that she is in actual physical residence, as distinct from occupation, with her husband, can render her liable as an occupier to the penalty attached under Section 339 (2) to the occupier who refuses to disclose the name of the owner. She might almost be said to be there virtute officii. To use the words of Counsel for the appellant, the occupier is the person who must know the name of the owner (that is, the hirer of the premises) and not the person who may know (such as the wife, the appellant, in the present case) and the fact that she does know, as I think the Magistrate inferentially found, does not make her the "occupier" who is alone liable under the Section.

The appellant is entitled to succeed on this reason and the Magistrate's decision is reversed and the appeal allowed, with costs.

THIS 3RD DAY OF OCTOBER, 1913

BERT CHUNKOO

versus

SANDBACH, PARKER & CO.

The following judgment was read:—

HILL, J., (actg.): In this appeal Mr. Abraham for the appellant admitted that the provisions of section 16 (1) Ordinance 13 of 1893 had not been complied with.

The appeal is dismissed and the decision affirmed with costs.

HARLEQUIN

versus

RAMASSURSING, Corporal of Police.

The following decision was read:—

HILL, acting J.: This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate convicting the appellant for that he on the 27th July, 1913, at Georgetown, in the Georgetown Judicial District, county of Demerara and colony of British Guiana, being the occupier of a place situate at lot 17, North Street, Georgetown, in the aforesaid Judicial District did use the same as a common gaming house.

The reasons of appeal are:

- The decision is erroneous in point of law.
 - Because it has not been proved that the fiat prosecution of the Attorney General was obtained before the institution of proceedings in the case.
 - Because the contrary has been proved.
 - Because a specific illegality substantially affecting the merits of the case was committed in the course of the proceedings in the case, namely that the original charge or complaint was not placed before the Magistrate but an unsigned paper purportng to be a complaint without oath was placed before the Magistrate apparently in the stead of the said original charge or complaint.

(d.) Because it has not been proved that the defendant is the occupier of the place in question.

(e.) Because the contrary has been proved.

(f.) Because the original charge or complaint not being before the Court it is impossible to say on what charge the defendant was arrested, especially in view of the fact that neither amendment nor substitution was asked for by the complainant.

(g.) Because it has not been proved that the defendant used the place in question as a common gaming house.

(h.) Because the contrary has been proved.

2. The decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict.

(a.) For the foregoing reasons

(b.) Because of the peculiar nature of all the evidence concerning the dice in question and especially on account of the substantial difference between the statement of the complainant and that of Inspector Gamble as to where the three dice in question were found.

Reason 2 was not argued, counsel for appellant admitting that this Court would not interfere with a Magistrate's finding on the facts, where there was sufficient evidence to enable him so to find.

And with regard to reason 1 (c) and (f) the allegations as to there being some original charge or complaint is in no way borne out by the record nor does it appear that any objection was taken on those grounds in the Magistrate's Court to the complaint on which the appellant was convicted.

There remains three points therefore:

(1.) The fiat prosecutio.

(2.) The question of defendant being the occupier of the premises.

(3.) The use of the premises as a common gaming house.

1. By Section 20, Ordinance 42 of 1902, it is enacted that "no proceedings shall be taken against any person for an offence under Sections 4 (the section under which appellant is charged), 5 and 6 of this Ordinance without the fiat of the Attorney General being first obtained."

From the evidence it appears that a search warrant on sworn information was obtained on 26th July, 1913, and on Sunday morning 27th July, at 1 a.m. the police raided a house on lot 17, North Street, and found the appellant and 21 other persons therein under circumstances which, in their opinion, enabled them to charge the appellant under Section 4 (a) of Ordinance 42 of 1902. Harlequin was taken to the Brickdam Station and was there admitted to bail by the police to appear on 28th July, (Monday) before the Magistrate. He did so appear and a complaint on which was the fiat prosecutio of the Attorney General was placed before the Magistrate and on that complaint he was tried and convicted.

It is contended that the information on which the search warrant was obtained was a "proceeding taken" and that on that information the fiat prosecutio should have been first obtained.

I am unable to agree with this contention—the "proceedings" in the matter were "taken" in the matter when the complaint was placed before the Magistrate and read to accused and at that time the fiat was on the complaint, as it was bound to be. "No proceedings shall be taken" is, in my opinion, equivalent to "no prosecution shall be commenced." And that this must be so, would seem to be the case, on reference to Section 5 for an offence under which no proceeding shall be taken without the fiat of the Attorney General.

That section reads as follows:—

5.—(1.) "Whoever plays in a common gaming house, shall, on being convicted thereof be liable, to a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars &c, &c"

(2.) "A person found in a common gaming house, or found escaping therefrom on the occasion of its being entered under this Ordinance, shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, to be or to have been playing therein." Now, the police obtain a search warrant on suspicion, and in searching, find twenty persons under circumstances which warrant them, in their opinion, in charging them under Section 5 (1). Can it be said that on such a charge the fiat of the Attorney General would be invalid? Certainly not, in my opinion. And see also Sections 12 and 13 which, in my opinion, clearly point to the fact that the search is a preliminary for the obtaining of information on which the Attorney General's fiat being obtained, "proceedings" can then be "taken." There can be no "offence" until one is ascertained to have been committed. I overrule reason 1 (a) and (b).

With regard to reason 1 (d) and (e) the Magistrate found "from the attitude, behaviour, and remarks of the defendant, as proved by the witness for the prosecution, strengthened by the evidence for the defendant that defendant was the occupier of the place situated on lot 17, North Road." He had ample grounds for coming to that conclusion. It is unnecessary for this Court to enumerate the instances of incidents—verbal or by act—appearing on the evidence which entitled him to hold that defendant was the occupier. Gowdy's statement to the police that Harlequin and Callender were the tenants and sometimes rent was paid by Harlequin and sometimes by Callender is strong evidence; although when called for the defence he contradicts it in his evidence before the Magistrate. Nevertheless, he admits he did sign the statement and that it was read over to him before he so signed it. He adds in answer to the Court "I can't say now whether I said Harlequin and Callender were the occupiers of the upstairs or front house." The Magistrate might well say that the evidence for the defendant strengthened that for the prosecution on this point.

There remains reason 1 (g) and (h). The evidence of what the police heard as they approached the house, what they found, the bets being made, the evidence of the number of persons in the house at 1 a.m. on Sunday morning, their attempts to escape, all justified the Magistrate in concluding that the premises came within the presumption of section 14 of Ordinance 42 of 1902, and the defendant has made no attempt whatever to rebut this.

Appellant was rightly convicted and the appeal is dismissed and the decision of the Magistrate affirmed with costs.
